Of the dozens of suggestions which have been made for changes in the playing rules the joint committee will probably adopt only a few. The rule makers believe that the game is satisfactory as it is now played and it will be their policy to let well enough adopted concerning just what constitutes a legal game.

It is pretty certain that a rule will be adopted prohibiting freak pitching, such as the spit-ball, the shine-ball and the many other trick tosses to which the batismen object every time they fail to hit the ball.
